What the Media Says about the National Constitution Center:

“The best addition to the Mall...a spacious, spirited museum.”

--New York Times

“[The National Constitution Center] is a modernist jewel of America’s civic life.”

--The Washington Post

“It works so well, in fact, that the National Constitution Center should be replicated in other cities, to be experienced by as many citizens as possible.”

--The Wall Street Journal

“The National Constitution Center has established itself as one of the city’s cultural celebs, attracting a million visitors a year, putting pizzazz into civic and educational offerings, hosting blockbuster exhibitions, and attracting the nation’s intellectual cognoscenti and media elite like bears to honey.”

--The Philadelphia Inquirer

“Already at its birth, one of the nation’s greatest museums.”

--Journal of American History

“Since opening in 2003, [the National Constitution Center] has put forward a vision of constitutional history both left and right have embraced.”

--New York Times

“A 17-minute show, with a live narrator and video, gets patriotic juices flowing with scenes of immigrants, women getting the vote, and African-Americans fighting for equality.”

--U.S. News & World Report
