THE NATIONAL CONSTITUTION CENTER PROMOTES THOMAS HILLHOUSE TO WEB SERVICES AND MARKETING MANAGER

PHILADELPHIA, PA (April 5, 2006) – The National Constitution Center has promoted Thomas Hillhouse to Web Services and Marketing Manager. Hillhouse previously served as Systems Analyst at the Center, a position he held since August 2003.

“Tom's experience, his innovative thinking and entrepreneurial instincts are a tremendous asset to the Center,” said President and CEO Richard Stengel. “I am confident that in his new role, he will expand our horizons online in a myriad of ways.”

In his new role as Web Services and Marketing Manager, Hillhouse will be responsible for all museum Internet communication, including e-mail marketing and the Center's website, www.constitutioncenter.org. He will create new online resources to extend the visitor experience outside the museum walls and work to bring an online component to the Center's ongoing marketing efforts.

Prior to joining the Constitution Center, Hillhouse was Director of Operations and co-owner of Market Reader Pro, an online market research firm. He was also a Technical Development Lead for Qwest Internet Solutions and an independent consultant. Hillhouse is currently a part-time instructor at the Art Institute of Philadelphia, teaching in the Interactive Media Design program.

The National Constitution Center, located at 525 Arch St. on Philadelphia's Independence Mall, is an independent, nonpartisan, nonprofit organization dedicated to increasing public understanding of the U.S. Constitution and the ideas and values it represents. Opened on July 4, 2003, the Constitution Center is a museum, an education center, and a forum for debate on constitutional issues. The museum dramatically tells the story of the Constitution from Revolutionary times to the present through more than 100 interactive, multimedia exhibits, film, photographs, text, sculpture and artifacts, and features a powerful, award-winning theatrical performance, "Freedom Rising". The Center also houses the Annenberg Center for Education and Outreach, which serves as the hub for national constitutional education and debates, and is a partner of NPR's "Justice Talking," a program of the Annenberg Public Policy Center. Also, serving as a nonpartisan forum for constitutional discourse, the Center presents – without endorsement – programs that contain diverse viewpoints on a broad range of issues.
