

1787 SOCIETY

The 1787 Society is a community of supporters dedicated to advancing constitutional education and civil dialogue.

Named for the year the Constitutional Convention proposed the U.S. Constitution, the 1787 Society recognizes annual donors who help sustain the National Constitution Center's mission to educate learners of all ages about the Constitution and promote thoughtful civil dialogue.

Through gifts of $1,000 or more, 1787 Society supporters provide essential annual funding that strengthens the Center's work at a pivotal moment for civic learning in America. Their generosity helps the Center expand the reach and impact of its programs for students, teachers, families museum visitors, and lifelong learners across the country.

Looking ahead to the civic decade beyond America's 250th anniversary, the Center is working to make constitutional education and civil dialogue more accessible, meaningful, and engaging for learners of all ages. 1787 Society supporters help advance this work across the Center's core priorities.

YOUR SUPPORT HELPS MAKE POSSIBLE:

- Civic education for students and teachers across the country: The Center equips educators and students with high-quality, nonpartisan constitutional resources, including classroom materials, online courses, live constitutional conversations, teacher professional development, and programs that help young people build the knowledge and habits of citizenship.
- Civil dialogue across difference: Through America's Town Hall programs, Book Clubs, podcasts, and scholar-led conversations, the Center convenes leading thinkers from across the constitutional spectrum and models meaningful dialogue on the most important questions facing the country.
- A world-class museum experience on Independence Mall: The Center welcomes visitors from Philadelphia, across the country, and around the world to explore the story of "We the People" through exhibitions, artifacts, educational programs, and civic experiences grounded in the Constitution.
- A stronger civic future: The Center can continue to deepen the impact and reach of its existing programs while developing promising new initiatives that help more people understand the Constitution, engage with one another across difference, and participate more fully in civic life.
