

CORPORATE PARTNERSHIP PROGRAM

The National Constitution Center's Corporate Partners are an exclusive group of leading companies that exemplify the spirit of corporate citizenship and public service.

Corporate Partners not only provide essential financial support, but also contribute their expertise and leadership to advance the Center's nonpartisan mission: to increase understanding of the U.S. Constitution and foster meaningful civil dialogue across the country.

ACTIVITIES AND ENGAGEMENT

Corporate Partnership CEOs and senior-most regional executives are invited to join the President's Council—a community of philanthropic leaders dedicated to the Center's vital mission to increase awareness and understanding of the U.S. Constitution. Through their generous financial support and intellectual contributions, Council members play a pivotal role in sustaining and advancing the Center's work to inspire learners of all ages to explore the Constitution and its core values and promote civil dialogue for all.

Executives also receive invitations to the annual President's Council Retreat, which brings together prominent constitutional scholars, jurists, and business leaders for in-depth discussions on the state of constitutional law, civil society, and civic education.

Other benefits include:

- VIP invitations to the annual Liberty Medal ceremony, which honors global leaders who advance liberty, democracy, and the rule of law;
- Private briefings with NCC executives and invited guests on constitutional and civic topics of national importance;
- Opportunities to engage in high-profile NCC programs such as America's Town Hall, featuring timely conversations on constitutional issues with leading legal and public policy experts; and
- Exclusive communications from NCC President and CEO Jeffrey Rosen, a respected constitutional scholar and legal commentator.

In Philadelphia and Beyond

From constitutional discussions at Mount Vernon and the Supreme Court to gatherings in Grand Rapids, annual retreats in Miami, and appearances at national forums like the Sun Valley Writers' Conference and the Chautauqua Institution, the National Constitution Center engages audiences across the country.

Our partnerships also extend nationwide—including collaborations with Arizona State University, Khan Academy, PBS, the Trust for the National Mall, presidential libraries, and other leading institutions—to advance constitutional education and civil dialogue.

Through a growing network of educators and a robust civics curriculum, the Center reaches classrooms and communities in all 50 states, amplifying our mission far beyond Philadelphia's historic district.

EXPECTATIONS AND RESPONSIBILITIES

Corporate Partners support the Center's mission through significant philanthropic contributions and strategic partnerships aligned with the Center's core initiatives. While Corporate Partnerships typically begin at the $25,000 level, each partnership is tailored to reflect the firm's values and interests.

Through their support, Corporate Partners:

- Often choose to sponsor high-impact events—such as civic holidays, or the Liberty Medal ceremony—demonstrating a commitment to civic education and public service while offering meaningful engagement opportunities for staff.
- Help to showcase the Center's mission in front of citizens and business leaders across the country, such as through live or virtual installments of our America's Town Hall series of discussions featuring leading thinkers on key constitutional issues and ideas, or other large-scale events, conversations, and speeches.
- Position themselves as champions of civic learning, nonpartisan dialogue, and the enduring principles of the Constitution—values essential to the future of American democracy.

To discuss the Corporate Partnership Program, please contact Vice President of Strategy and Development Lauren Sylling (lsylling@constitutioncenter.org).

We are also delighted to discuss opportunities to sponsor general free admission days, America's Town Hall sponsorships, and other special programming, or to support the Center's EITC EIO approved Young Citizens Scholarship Program.

A black and white photograph of several bronze statues of the Founding Fathers, including John Adams, Thomas Jefferson, and Benjamin Franklin, set against a background of classical columns. The statues are arranged in a group, with some standing and some seated. The lighting is dramatic, highlighting the textures of the statues and the folds of their clothing.

ABOUT THE NCC AND AMERICA 250

Born out of the bicentennial of the Constitution in 1987, the National Constitution Center was chartered by Congress to disseminate nonpartisan information about the Constitution and has grown to be America's leading platform for civic education and civil dialogue for people of all ages and perspectives across the country.

Consistent with our history and mission, the Center will play a central role in the nation's celebration of America's 250th anniversary in 2026, and in preparing the nation for the Constitution's 250th anniversary in 2037, reaching learners across America and around the world by:

- developing and disseminating new core educational products and resources in addition to amplifying the reach of our existing resources, such as our various Constitution 101 course offerings;
- modeling civil dialogue through convenings across America, as well as our weekly We the People podcast and America's Town Hall programs; and
- leading the way for a high visibility, high impact commemoration in Philadelphia, the birthplace of the Declaration of Independence and Constitution, and home to our museum on historic Independence Mall that tells the story of our nation through interactive exhibits and programs.

Throughout each of these core pillars, the Center will form strategic partnerships and lead changemaking coalitions to help scale our efforts to reach students and lifelong learners across the country to commemorate 2026 and inspire learning through the next 250 years and beyond.
