LANA ULRICH
Senior Director of Content, Constitutional Fellow, and Senior Counsel
National Constitution Center

Lana Ulrich is the senior director of content, a constitutional fellow, and senior counsel at the National Constitution Center, where she manages the Center's constitutional content and programming initiatives. As the Center's senior counsel, she assists with any legal matters relating to the National Constitution Center's operations, including contracts and intellectual property matters. She also directs the Center's new Continuing Legal Education program.

As the Center's senior director of content, Lana Ulrich manages the content and production of the We the People and Live at America's Town Hall podcasts, on-site and traveling Town Hall debates, and museum exhibits, as well as online content such as the Interactive Constitution and the Constitution Daily blog. She moderates Town Hall programs and podcasts, and has appeared on other podcasts and radio shows including Civics 101 to discuss constitutional issues. She also oversees the work of the Center's bipartisan national commission, A Madisonian Constitution for All, which asks what Madison and the other framers of the U.S. Constitution would have thought of our current presidency, Congress, courts, and media, and how we can resurrect Madisonian values of constitutionalism, public reason, and the rule of law in a populist age.

Prior to joining the Center, she worked as a legal fellow for the United Nations Association, another nonprofit organization in Philadelphia. While in law school, she served as a law clerk for the U.S. Department of State's Office of Legal Adviser, where she assisted in representing the United States in international litigation and at the Iran-U.S. Claims Tribunal in The Hague. She also worked for a labor and employment law firm in Washington, D.C.

Lana Ulrich is a graduate of The George Washington University Law School, where she was a Thurgood Marshall scholar. She also studied abroad at the University of Oxford in England through the GW-Oxford program, receiving a certificate in International Human Rights Law. She received her bachelor's degree with honors from The Pennsylvania State University.

She is admitted in New York and Pennsylvania (in-house corporate counsel).