OVERVIEW

Warm Up
Part I: ROAD TO THE CONVENTION
Part II: PRINCIPLES OF THE AMERICAN CONSTITUTION

FRAMING QUESTIONS

- Why did the Founding generation decide to write a new Constitution?
- What was the Articles of Confederation, and what sort of national government did it establish?
- What did the Founding generation learn from the state constitutions that the American people wrote before the U.S. Constitution?
- What was Shays’ Rebellion, and how did it influence the Founding generation?
- What key principles underlie the U.S. Constitution, and what sort of system of government did the Founding generation establish?

BIG IDEAS

The Founders were children of the Enlightenment. When crafting a new Constitution, they learned from history and from their own experiences. Between the Declaration of Independence and the U.S. Constitution, the American people were governed at the national level by the Articles of Confederation and at the state level by state constitutions. With the U.S. Constitution, the Founding generation established a new national government. This new government was more powerful than the national government established by the Articles of Confederation, but also one of limited powers.
WARM UP
Why did the Founding generation decide to write a new Constitution? Write down two or three thoughts to answer the question.

PART I: ROAD TO THE CONVENTION
Let’s begin by reviewing some of the key events, and factors, leading to the push for a new Constitution.

The Articles of Confederation
The Articles created a weak central government, or a “league of friendship”.

FINAL REFLECTION
Before we end the session today, let’s reflect back on the question we asked at the beginning:

Why did the Founding generation decide to write a new Constitution?
Can you add two or three words to your original answer based on what you heard today?
