

REBECCA BOLDEN
Senior Director of Development
National Constitution Center

Rebecca Bolden is the senior director of development of the National Constitution Center, having joined its development staff in 2015. She leads a six-member team in raising contributed revenue from a diverse and growing national base of institutional and individual donors who provide significant support for the Center's general operations, exhibitions, education programs, and capital projects. She values the opportunities she has to get to know so many of the Center's supporters, including its Members and 1787 Society donors who in addition to their generosity share their great enthusiasm for the Center's mission and its efforts to increase constitutional knowledge and elevate civil dialogue.

Bolden has more than 15 years of leadership experience in Philadelphia's nonprofit cultural sector. Prior to coming to the National Constitution Center, she was director of development at Fleisher Art Memorial, one of the nation's oldest community art schools, and executive director of the Philadelphia Singers, a professional chorus that served as the Resident Chorus of The Philadelphia Orchestra.

Bolden received her Bachelor of Arts from Clark University.

She resides in South Philadelphia with her husband and enjoys having access to its many restaurants and great cultural institutions.
